

Dr Barry L. Duncan
presents :-

What makes a Super- Therapist?

Some therapists achieve significantly better outcomes than their peers, even using the same model. Barry Duncan and his associates have spent decades researching therapeutic change, having had access to a huge database of clinical results. Through a degree of detective work they have established which factors contribute to superior performance in therapy – and it is not what you might first think.

Join Barry in this workshop where he shares his journey and findings, and describes some of the things you can do immediately to improve the chances of being in the 'Super-therapist' category. Barry will also introduce the principles behind the Partners for Change Outcome Management System (PCOMS) that identifies the early indicators of clients who are not responding. The system has been successfully implemented across the USA and Canada, and is used in 20 other countries around the world. It is included in the US National Registry of Evidence-based programs and practices.

Barry L. Duncan, Psy.D. is a therapist, trainer, and researcher with over 17,000 hours of clinical experience. He is the author of over 100 publications including 17 books, the latest of which is "On Becoming a Better Therapist (APA, 2014). He is CEO of Better Outcomes Now (betteroutcomesnow.com), and the developer of the clinical process of the Partners for Change Outcome Management System, a designated evidence based practice.

The workshop is suitable for all those who are engaged in therapeutic interactions with clients. It will contribute six hours Continuing Professional Development
